FOR PRESIDENT,

WM. McKINLEY.

FOR VICE-PRESIDENT,

THEO. ROOSEVELT.

No bounds could contain the joy of the minority for which the Advertiser speaks, should the people of the Territory become so indifferent to their duty as American citizens as to allow Hawaii's present local monarchical system to continue.

Wilcox, Kaula and Kalaupahani are an ever present nightmare with the anti-municipal minority. In fact the fright occasioned by this trio has evidently caused the minority to turn tail and skedaddle, taking it for granted Hawaiian-Americans are the leading exponents of corruption and political horrors. No one knows better than Wilcox, Kaula and Kalaupahani that by advocating a campaign of corruption, they will not be able to gather a corporal's guard among Hawaiian-Americans. The Advertiser makes the sad mistake of running counter to the Republican principle of crediting American citizens with honest, patriotic judgment.

NOT IF THE PEOPLE KNOW THEMSELVES.

"Monarchical systems in American territory won't run," says the Bulletin. And did William McKinley and a Republican Congress set up a monarchical system here? Or is the Bulletin turning Mugwump?—Advertiser.

No doubt the Advertiser would hail with joy the Bulletin's espousal of its contemporary's Mugwump campaign. But unfortunately—for the contemporary—the Bulletin has yet to concur in the false doctrine that the faith placed by President McKinley and the Republican Congress, in the American citizenship of Hawaii has been given into the hands of a weak, thoughtless or faltering people, guided by corruptionists with an overwhelming greed for spoils.

"And did William McKinley and a Republican Congress set up a monarchical system here?"

No. Much to the Advertiser's disgust as it will discover by reference to its comments made when the question of free suffrage for citizens of Hawaii was under discussion in the halls of Congress. In spite of the strenuous efforts of the minority the Advertiser is supposed to represent, President McKinley and a Republican Congress irretrievably wiped out that last vestige of monarchical rule—the restricted franchise. The Republican President and Republican Congress, when dealing with the citizens of Hawaii kept the true American faith. They fulfilled honestly and without faltering the promise that the people shall rule, and no barriers were set up against the complete recognition of the rights of the humblest citizen.

Having laid the solid foundation, the Republican President and the Republican Congress look to the citizens of Hawaii to carry out the good work, moving ever onward and upward, creating for the Territory such details of local municipal rule as will satisfy the people and keep within the lines of liberal rule upon which the nation and this Territory have been established.

When it comes to the completion of the work so well performed by Republican national leaders, where does the Advertiser find itself?

Be it said to the credit of our contemporary that there can be no question as to its position. It forcefully and with enthusiasm calls for the continuation of that old monarchical system which makes Honolulu, Hilo, in fact every city, town and wayside hamlet subject to the beck and call, the favor or disfavor of the appointive officials of the capital building. Rule of the majority by a compact minority is the star of hope that guides its inconsistent pathway. Its enthusiasm is expressed in repeated spiteful efforts to discredit and degrade the character of Hawaiian-American citizenship which must and will rule the Territory as an American territory, not as a relic of monarchy. The charge of imperialism having been successfully and honestly refuted by the Republican party, the Republican President and Congress, the Advertiser would now have Imperial power retained by the officers of the Territory.

Will the people allow such a nefarious campaign to be successful, will the Republican party of these islands reject the duty placed upon it by the national leaders?

Not if the people know themselves.

Street Sweeping and Watering.

Editor Evening Bulletin:—Isn't it about time that our Road Supervisor got a move on, and drew up an intelligent and impartial scheme for sweeping and watering the streets of the city, including the thickly populated residence portions of same?

Take the business portions of the town for instance. It is left to the tender mercies of a private individual who runs his water cart at irregular intervals, and who splashes the streets with floods of water making them impassable for ladies to cross and very hard for boys to run their wheels on. The government water carts and street sweeping machines devote their time and attention to certain streets round about the government buildings, a reflection of the time when it was a police, and also to certain favored streets which have been picked out by the authorities for some occult reason or other as being worthy of their attention. Take Emma street for instance. Some time ago I witnessed the strange exhibition of toydom made by three water carts watering the street in front of Mr. Dole's residence on a Sunday and when a slight rainfall from Nuuanu direction was falling.

Again, take Miller street. The portion of Miller street extending from Beretania street to Vineyard street is regularly swept and watered. It was done this morning. But why in the name of fairness, if the lower portion of the street, where nobody lives on the Ewa side, requires to be swept and watered at government expense, why, I say is the upper portion of the same street, from Vineyard to Kinau streets not also watered and swept?

The manner in which the watering and sweeping of our streets is carried on by the government exhibits a strange compound of idleness and favoritism.

DISGUSTED.

A CHARTER ASSURED.

The call to a meeting of the prospective Elks which was held in the Chamber of Commerce rooms last evening was responded to in a surprising and agreeable manner. Not more than one half of the gentlemen on the list were expected to put in an appearance, but instead only a very few were absent. After the business of the meeting was disposed of the chairman, F. M. Brooks, announced a recess of five minutes in which to become better acquainted with each other. The meeting was then called to order and the social features of the order were partially explained to the uninitiated who entered into it with a keen sense of enjoyment.

During the remainder of the meeting, although the greater number present were at first a little backward about entering into something they were strangers to, the qualifications that are necessary to make good Elks were unconsciously revealed and it was a unanimous vote that a good selection had been made.

It is only a matter of a few weeks when a lodge will be running in full blast.

Editor C. R. Buckland.

Campaign literature now sent out by the National Republican committee has the signature of "Charles R. Buckland, editor." Mr. Buckland will be remembered by many people of Honolulu where he did his first newspaper work years ago as editor of the Bulletin and afterwards the Advertiser. Mr. Buckland acting under the direction of Perry M. Heath has full charge of the literature of the Republican national committee. He is now located in Chicago.

Matter of Words.

All the trouble about an application for a permit to build a warehouse in Kawaihau cemetery was caused by the English as she were wrote by a Japanese. He applied for a permit to "build a warehouse" in the "graveyard" from the Punchbowl street in Kawaihau. As the authorities did not think the tenants of the city of the dead needed a warehouse an investigation was made. The result was the discovery that the lot of the Japanese was only next or near the graveyard. It, however, had made a lot of trouble.
